- Déby had on Monday, April 6, told Shekau to surrender or die
- But in his reaction, Shekau threatened that he and troops would visit Déby with a violent attack

Barely twenty hours after Chadian president, Idriss Déby asked him to surrender or be ready to die, the leader of Jama'atu Ahlis Sunna Lidda'awati Wal-Jihad also known as Boko Haram, Abubakar Shekau, has threatened to go after him.

The Nation reports that he was reacting to the huge loss suffered by his sect in last week's encounter with Chadian soldiers.

Legit.ng gathered that in less than five minutes of audio message released by the sect, a rather subdued Shekau said his fighters would go after the Chadian president for his war against the sect.

According to the newspaper, Shekau, who spoke in Hausa, said despite the setbacks inflicted on Boko Haram by the Chadian troops in an assault coordinated by Déby, the sect was ready to fight on.

"He came out fully dressed up with the ambition of fighting the religion of Islam, that is he wants to fight us because we said we will work for the enthronement of Islam, we are Jama'atu Ahlis Sunna Lidda'awati Wal-Jihad.

"Our aim is to follow the tenet of the Qur'an; our aim is to follow the tenets of the prophet; our aim is to practice Islam the way the prophet of Allah left instructions before dying and handing over to knowledgeable scholars, who have also passed it down to me.

"Idris Déby, I will address you now. I am, Insha Allahu Taalla, Abubakar ibn Mohammed Shekau, the Imam of Jama'atu Ahlis Sunna Lidda'awati Wal-Jihad. I decided to send you this message quickly. Don't think because you've fought battles in ignorance not according to the tenet of Islam, and today, because we said we will work for Allah, you think you will triumph over us.
